

Designer Steve Winter Joins Walter Robbs

WINSTON-SALEM, NC (October 17, 2016) - Walter Robbs Callahan & Pierce Architects, PA (Walter Robbs) is pleased to announce that Steve Winter has joined the firm as Intern Architect.

Steve has held positions in Columbus, Ohio, New York City, and Asheville, North Carolina. He has successfully managed a broad range of design projects throughout the US and abroad working at scales ranging from custom retail fixtures and installations to large scale architectural projects and renovations. Project types have included historic preservation, adaptive re-use, mixed use, retail, hospitality, higher education, and multi-family housing.

Steve worked professionally as a Journeyman Carpenter prior to earning a Bachelor of Arts Degree in History (magna cum laude) and a Master of Architecture degree from The Ohio State University.

After receiving his Master's degree, Steve was hired by Ohio State's Knowlton School of Architecture to redevelop the mission and functionality of the school's Materials and Fabrication Lab (Mat-Fab-Lab). During that time he also spearheaded the design proposal effort that resulted in Ohio State being awarded the chance to compete in the US Department of Energy's 2011 Solar Decathlon competition. Under Steve's leadership as a Faculty Advisor and lead project manager and builder, Ohio State successfully placed 5th among 20 international competitors.
